

Unit 2 C3, Exercises p. 29 - Key

Exercise 1

1. I couldn't hear what Tom had said, so he repeated that he was reading a new book on computers. 2. Our teacher wasn't happy with our work. She complained that we never worked hard enough. 3. I had forgotten about my train, but Andy reminded me that it was going to leave in ten minutes. 4. In her last letter Susan wrote that she had bought a new computer program. 5. Alec gave me a computer program he had written, so I promised that I would give him one of mine, too. 6. Pam explained to me that it was impossible to install the new program on my computer. 7. The children denied that they had copied their computer programs illegally when the police interviewed them about their programs. 8. The police informed the parents that their children would not have to stay at the police station any longer.

Exercise 2

1. One boy said (that) he had not read any horror stories yet, but perhaps he would read some one day. 2. A girl called Joan told us that she was reading an exciting story at the moment and was enjoying it very much. 3. Allen, a fifteen-year-old boy, added that he had read lots of love stories in the last few years. 4. Some young people replied that they sometimes went to the cinema with their parents. 5. Cathy, a girl in year 10, answered that she had borrowed a video a few days ago and that she would (was going to) watch it the following weekend.

Exercise 3

I think the boy was saying (that) he wanted to know who was in the armour. And the knight was saying (that) he was not allowed to tell little boys everything they wanted to know.

I think the boy was saying that he was surprised to see a knight in armour on a football field. And the knight was answering that he would be playing football there with his team in the next match.

The boy was replying that he didn't believe him and that the knight was only making fun of him. The knight was telling the boy that he should wait and see and watch him.

Unit 2 C3, Exercises p. 29 - Key

Exercise 1

1. I couldn't hear what Tom had said, so he repeated that he was reading a new book on computers. 2. Our teacher wasn't happy with our work. She complained that we never worked hard enough. 3. I had forgotten about my train, but Andy reminded me that it was going to leave in ten minutes. 4. In her last letter Susan wrote that she had bought a new computer program. 5. Alec gave me a computer program he had written, so I promised that I would give him one of mine, too. 6. Pam explained to me that it was impossible to install the new program on my computer. 7. The children denied that they had copied their computer programs illegally when the police interviewed them about their programs. 8. The police informed the parents that their children would not have to stay at the police station any longer.

Exercise 2

1. One boy said (that) he had not read any horror stories yet, but perhaps he would read some one day. 2. A girl called Joan told us that she was reading an exciting story at the moment and was enjoying it very much. 3. Allen, a fifteen-year-old boy, added that he had read lots of love stories in the last few years. 4. Some young people replied that they sometimes went to the cinema with their parents. 5. Cathy, a girl in year 10, answered that she had borrowed a video a few days ago and that she would (was going to) watch it the following weekend.

Exercise 3

I think the boy was saying (that) he wanted to know who was in the armour. And the knight was saying (that) he was not allowed to tell little boys everything they wanted to know.

I think the boy was saying that he was surprised to see a knight in armour on a football field. And the knight was answering that he would be playing football there with his team in the next match.

The boy was replying that he didn't believe him and that the knight was only making fun of him. The knight was telling the boy that he should wait and see and watch him.